E. R. A. CANNING CENTER AT RUMFORD

The E. R. A. Canning Center at the Virginian school building, Rumford is ready to take produce from this vicinity. Produce should be at the cannery center before ten o'clock if possible.

People or towns furnishing produce but no labor pay the cannery one out of two cans. When produce and labor are furnished one out of three cans is kept at the center as toll.

All cans kept at the center as toll will be distributed to the towns in the State for relief work. Products to be canned are: beans, corn, Tomatoes, greens, apples.

DR. GEORGE M. TWITCHELL

Dr. George M. Twitchell, 86, died Wednesday night, Aug. 15 in his home in Auburn after a short period of failing health.

Dr. Twitchell was born Sept. 17, 1847, in Bethel, the son of Dr. Almon and Phoebe B. Twitchell. His grandfather, Joseph, was the first white child born in Bethel.

He ended his study in school at the time of the death of his father in 1859, when he was 12 years of age. To provide a living for himself and his mother he worked at anything he could get to do. He took up the study of dentistry in his home at the age of 19 years and later practiced in Yarmouth, Fairfield, Bethel and Readfield.

In 1870 he married Florence Allen of Yarmouth. They had no children. Because of poor health they went from Fairfield to Readfield where they bought a farm, operating it as one of the best poultry places in the county, handling Barred Plymouth Rocks with which they were successful, selling some fine birds at fancy prices for breeding stock.

About this time Dr. Twitchell commenced what he called his "side line" as writer and lecturer. He served as lecturer of the Maine State Grange and as secretary of the Maine State Fair.

In 1897 he acquired an interest in the Maine Farmer, and was editor and manager. He continued as speaker at agricultural meetings throughout New England. He took an active part in the publicity that changed the State agricultural department so that the head became Commissioner and which resulted in a change in the methods.

In 1904 because of poor health he became manager of a large estate, The Balsams, in New Hampshire, and later in the same capacity of the Elmwood Farm of J. S. Sanborn at Poland.

About 20 years ago he and Mrs. Twitchell bought their eight acre farm at Monmouth, calling it Inglenook. Dr. Twitchell carried on extensively and intensively the experiments he was so greatly interested in, making improvement in the quality of productivity of sweet corn, melons, strawberries, apples, plums, squashes, etc., in which he was very successful.

For a period of over 60 years Dr. Twitchell carried a license as a lay preacher of the Universalist church and was called upon to preach many times.

Surviving besides his widow are a sister, Mrs. S. Irving French of Bethel and five nieces and nephews, including Mrs. D. R. Smith of Bethel and George H. French of Turn- er.

Dr. Twitchell has been confined to his room for 16 weeks, and only a little over a week ago Mrs. Twitchell was injured in an automobile accident and is still suffering from its effects. Death came to Dr. Twitchell at 11 p. m., Wednesday night, Aug. 15.

HENRY H. HASTINGS

My last memory of Judge Hastings is a very pleasant one. On the Fourth of July he watched the beautiful pageant given against the background of the Students' Home. After it was over he made his way onto the terrace to congratulate each tired member of the committee, whose Herculean efforts had ensured its success, with a warmth, an enthusiasm that was delightful. He seemed so buoyant in his pleasure, so keen in his interest in their public spirited endeavor; so young, so virile. Never I thought had I seen him so happy, so unrestrained in his expressions of appreciation and good feeling.

His death brings a great loss to the town, the county, the state. All of them he has ably served in various capacities. Never was there a time when men of experience and judgment were so needed as now. Never a time when such an one could so ill be spared.

To the town of which he was so large, so important a part, the loss is an irreparable one. To the church whose generous and loyal supporter he has been. To the Academy, of whose Board of Trustees he was an efficient executive. To the Library, which he has so many years self-sacrificingly served and whose interests he had much at heart. To his political party, of which he was a recognized leader, looked to for the counsel and direction that from his wide experience he was well fitted to give.

Apart from the members of his immediate family between whom and himself existed a devotion rarely equalled, the blow falls most heavily upon many who were accustomed to turn to him for advice and guidance, and who have found in his strength and kindness a refuge and defence. Truly it may be said to-day as was said ages ago in face of the over—

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Donald Lord celebrated his third birthday Monday afternoon by entertaining several small people of his age. The afternoon was spent making friends, playing with his many nice birthday gifts and other toys, and posing for snapshots. The little guests especially enjoyed themselves when they were invited to the dining room where they were presented with party favors and served with dainty refreshments of ice cream and birthday cake. The guests were Eleanor Gurney, Patsy Tucker, Marlene Anderson, Ramona Hall, Lois Ann Van, Jerry Davis and Lee Carver. Others enjoying the party were Mrs. Agnes Gurney, Mrs. Betty Anderson, Mrs. Dorothy Tucker, Mrs. Elsie Davis, Mrs. Melba Hall, Mrs. Jane Van, and the hostess, Mrs. Doris Lord.

BETHEL FARM BUREAU HAS FLOWER SHOW

The local Farm Bureau had an all day meeting Wednesday. A picnic dinner was enjoyed, followed by a business meeting. A feature of the day's program was a flower show. Miss Alice Willis and Mrs. John Burbank acted as judges. The following received the full 100 points: Mrs. Grace Tyler, Mrs. Ada Durell, Mrs. Emily Chapman, Miss Eugenia Haselton, Mrs. Fannie Lovejoy, Mrs. Lily Burbank, Mrs. Eva Hastings and Mrs. Mary Ladd. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Durell, Mrs. Hastings, Mrs. Ladd and Mrs. Lovejoy. A special prize was given Miss Ida Clough. The next meeting will be Sept. 19. The subject, "Janas and Jeilles."

Dr. Twitchell has been confined to his room for 16 weeks, and only a little over a week ago Mrs. Twitchell was injured in an automobile accident and is still suffering from its effects. Death came to Dr. Twitchell at 11 p. m., Wednesday night, Aug. 15.

SINGLE MEN ANNIHILATE BALL AND CHAINS

The single men annihilated the local aggregation of Hen-pecked Henrys to the tune of 22-18 Tuesday night. As the score indicates, the fray was a pitchers' battle. The single men played errorless baseball, every man a star. The married men, who never get a chance to open their mouths at home, grabbed this opportunity to yell out when not restrained by their better halves and crab the bribe-proof umpires, Goddard and Swan, who refused to be scared or threatened.

The Benedictines turned in a game replete with errors and misplays, especially the disciple of Aesculapius, who held down first sack. Local opinion has it that the married men having been shown up at last, will retire from the diamond and go back to dodging rolling pins and frying pans for the rest of the season, although the Free-and-Happy stand ready to whip them again.

WORK OF GOOD WILL TO BE PRESENTED AT BETHEL INN NEXT SUNDAY EVENING

A description, illustrated with slides of the present Good Will Homes and Schools at Hinckley will be given by Walter P. Hinckley, superintendent and son of the founder, at Bethel Inn next Sunday evening at 7:30. Miss M. Elizabeth Arnts, field secretary, will give a brief outline of the beginning of the work. This will be a fine opportunity for Bethel people to learn more of the wonderful accomplishments of this famous Maine enterprise. All interested townspeople will be welcome.

MRS. FLORICE MAY McINNIS

Born Nov. 13, 1880

Died, West Bethel, Aug. 16, 1934.

Mrs. McInnis was the daughter of the late Albert F. and Viola Bennett Brooks, and was born in Grafton, Maine, where she spent her early life, acquiring her education in the public schools of that town. On Oct. 1, 1896, she became the wife of Charles W. McInnis, a native of Prince Edward Island, and lived for a time in Bryant Pond and also in Grafton, N. H.

In 1916, they came to West Bethel. Mr. McInnis died four years ago, and Mrs. McInnis, although frail, bravely "carried on," working far beyond her strength, often caring for the sick in other homes.

Skilled in the art of needle work her fingers were never idle. Many beautiful pieces of intricate embroidery are treasures left to those who loved her. A devoted mother, she yet had room in her heart and home for the three orphan nieces and her love and care for them will remain as a monument which shall endure.

Mrs. McInnis had been in ill health for a number of years, and underwent a serious operation in April, being confined to her bed from then until her death. Her grandchildren went to see her every day during her illness and their presence cheered many weary hours.

Surviving relatives are one son,

Kenneth McInnis, one daughter, Mrs. Linwood Lowell, and five grandchildren, two sisters, Mrs.

Daisy Morton of North Newry and

Mrs. Mertie Learned of Rumford, two brothers, Elmer Brooks of Laconia, N. H., and Gleynn Brooks of Island Pond, Vt., two half sisters, Mrs. James Croteau of Bethel and Mrs. Herbert Hobbs of Wilton, also a step-mother, Mrs. Addie

Brooks of Errol, N. H., three nieces who made their home with her. Al-

Marguerite and Jessie Brooks, besides several other nieces and nephews.

Mrs. McInnis was a member of West Bethel Union Church, a member of the Pythian Sisters and of Franklin Grange, Bryant Pond.

Prayers were at the house and services at West Bethel Union

Church Sunday, Aug. 19, at 2 p.

m., conducted by Rev. O. P. Bollman. Mrs. Doris Lord and Miss

Hazel Grover sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," and interment was at West Bethel Cemetery.

Sorrow o'er the lowly hovers,

Yet I bid thee cease to weep,

God's hand stills pain's troubled waters.

And your loved one fell asleep.

Tho' you did not hear the summons,

It bade her enter rest;

And you know she's free from sickness.

Simply trust, for God knows best.

REMINISCENCES OF
EAST STONEHAM
By J. N. COLE

About 1874 a young man, Peter Miller, was scalded fatally in a steam vat at the Barker Mill while at work adjusting a corner. He lived four weeks and several Stoneham people helped care for him as he was a protege of Dr. Faunce of Waterford, who succeeded Dr. Manning as physician in Stoneham.

Some time previous to the raz-ing of the old No. 2 schoolhouse, Robert Smith built a small house up hill not far from it and dwelt there with his family. His wife was a daughter of Elisha Allen (the pioneer). Then about that time Maurice Bicknell, who married Robert Smith's oldest daughter, had a cottage built just below the No. 1 schoolhouse and dwelt there. Previous to April 1878 when the Lorenzo N. Cole family moved to Concord, N. H., (Mr. Cole going the fall before) there was no church building but there had been a Sunday school and Elijah Russell was superintendent and teacher. The Ladies' Aid met at the houses and frequently had a ten cent social and supper which was well patronized.

The Schools, Etc.

Previous to 1850 there does not seem to be any record of school kept in town, but about that time a house was used that stood on the corner of the road that crossed the one that lead from Bowdell's bridge, and a school was taught there by Mary R. Littlefield, but more than that is not known. Several years later a schoolhouse was built down the hill nearer the bridge, and in this schoolhouse a large number of terms were taught by different teachers. Some of these were as follows (but not in their order): Charles Dressler, a Mr. Pottle, Charles Allen, a Miss Chickerling, Elisha Bartlett, Allie Manning, a daughter of Dr. Manning the town physician and school committee. Dr. Manning was succeeded by Edmund Barker, who held the office until he left town in the late 70's. As the old schoolhouse had about passed its usefulness, by a vote of the district, a new one was built nearer the village. This one was two stories high and had two school rooms, the upper or first grade was taught by Tena C. Stone, and the lower by Lillian Buswell. Another early teacher was Miss M. Foster, but which one of the first schoolhouses she taught in is not known at this time. (About 1860.) At the time the new school was built in the early 70's by an out of town contractor, there were 104 registered in the district. Miss Littlefield, first mentioned above, was a student of Bowdoin College, and may have been a graduate of that institution. A Mr. Kigore (Grand Sir) was the first janitor of this schoolhouse and did a large amount of work to make it comfortable for the teachers and pupils.

Accidents and Incidents

The writer will not attempt to chronicle everything that transpired in the town only those pertaining to East Stoneham, which occurred between 1863 and 1878, and at that will not attempt to give the exact date in all cases.

Some time in the year 1863, John, 3 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Cole, while at play near the log cabin door, tripped on an old scythe carelessly left under foot and nearly severed the toes on his right foot, cutting off nearly all the cords so that they hung down merely held by the skin.

Miss Martha Foster was also one of the early teachers in the old No. 2 schoolhouse on the road above Bowdell's bridge, and Mary Ann Bryant is said to have been one of the first school teachers in town, that taught in the old No. 1 schoolhouse.

"You're too modest!"

Motorists who got the first G-3's put out—months before the public announcement—say, "You're too modest!" Many of them report 50% to 100% more non-skid mileage. Why, then, do we insist on only 43%? Well, 43% is a definite test-car-proved figure. Very likely it is low for normal use—because the tests which established the 43% average were grueling: cars speeding up to 50, jamming on brakes, mile after mile, day and night. Very likely most motorists will get more than 43% more non-skid mileage. But we'll string along with 43%—because it's plenty to deliver at no extra cost. Come see the tire that's the talk of the nation.

WHO IS TO DRINK IT

A dialogue took place between two American citizens not long ago, one of them a business man and the other a clergyman, to whom the business man spoke frankly, as one does to a good friend:

"Well," said the layman, with an air of finality, "Prohibition is a failure, and we must get used to the idea of making America wet once again."

"But who is to drink the liquor?" queried his friend. "Will you?"

"Why, no," replied the layman. "You know that I am a teetotaler."

"Will your son drink it?"

"No; God forbid!"

"Would you want liquor back, for the sake of your clerks?"

"No, it is my practice to discharge any clerks who drink liquor."

"Do you want your customers to drink it?"

"No, I would much rather not; I am sure that those who use strong drink will not buy so much from me or pay their bills so promptly."

"Should you want the engineer on your train to use it?"

"No, I admit I don't want to ride on a drunkard's train."

"Ah, then, you want this liquor for the men whom you meet driving cars on the public highway?"

"No, of course not; that is a danger to everybody."

"Well, then, who is to drink this liquor in America?"

"I am not so sure that anybody should drink it. I guess we'd be much better off without it."

THE "TAKE-A-CHANCE CLUB"

You won't find the address of the "Take-A-Chance Club" in any telephone book or city directory. It has never been incorporated, and it has no club-house. But a good many thousand Americans belong to it—though they wouldn't admit it—and no "fraternal" organization in the world exacts such high dues.

The ritual of the club runs something like this:

"I will always take a chance when driving my car. I will cut corners and drive on the wrong side of the road if I happen to feel like it. I will make a regular habit of passing other cars on hills and curves. I will always drive faster than road conditions warrant, and I will be especially careless when it is raining or snowing and visibility is poor. I will not make a regular inspection of my car's brakes and steering. I'll take it for granted that they are good enough. I will make no effort to learn the traffic laws of my state and community, and if I do happen to discover some of them accidentally, I will break them at every opportunity. I'll let the other driver watch out for me as well as himself, and I'll act as if the highways and streets were my private property.

"I'll pay no attention to traffic lights and stop signs, and I'll do my best to practice none of the courtesies of the road."

The members of the "Take-A-Chance Club" follow this ritual to the letter, and the result is that each year some 30,000 people are needlessly killed in automobile accidents, and property is destroyed to the extent of $1,000,000,000.

Are you a member of the club?

HENRY HARMON HASTINGS

Words of Tribute by Prof. W. B. Mitchell of Brunswick

Friends: We have gathered here this afternoon to pay our tribute of respect and affection to a friend, a neighbor, a brother, a father, a husband. Henry Hastings, I am sure, would be the last person on earth to wish me or anyone else to parade his virtues before the world or to say anything in eulogy of him that was not strictly and absolutely true. To do that would be disloyal to his memory and directly contrary to all the principles according to which he lived. But there are thoughts and feelings in our minds and hearts to-day which demand expression, and which it is only just, and in every way fitting and proper, for us to express.

An able, strong, honest, public-spirited, right-thinking, large-hearted man has gone from us, and ming sorrow of death. "The manners go about the streets." He abhorred ostentation. He had born of fulsome words. He dedicated praise. Remembering his eyes it almost with hesitancy the words the heart prompts spoken. The good he did as he his way—and it was manifold, in only to those whom it blessed sprang from the large hearted birth of his nature, from a sense comradeship with his fellow a spirit of tolerance for their likes and compassion for their dislikes. Wherever there was want unhappiness there was the impulse to help. Perhaps it a little child with cold, wet whom he must see comfortably. A weary old person faltering with the burden of the day to he must give a lift. A young remembers that at three learned to read from a little which Judge Hastings gave when her mother was ill and the child was lonesome. Unless such acts as these been for years a part of our good. Some one has said can do a great deal of good world if he doesn't care who the credit of it." That is the of good which Judge Hastings the only kind that really divorced from self-seeking, different as to where the credit

In the Oxford Bar he was one of most valued members. As member of both legislative houses, of Governor's Council, the State's Commission, he has formed wide acquaintance throughout State. Perhaps in no work of life he has found the interest stimulus that came from the Commission and his concern for prison reform. Ten years ago he entered upon first term as Probate Judge and same week, as Chairman of the Bar, presided over the services of the dedication of the State's prison. In an old file of Bethel paper is an article "This has been a Red Letter week for Judge Hastings." The had been rebuilt after a fire swept away the old building, some relic of the day when meant punishment only and reform. He had been largely instrumental in working out a system of discipline which inaugurated new era in the prison life. The obedience and affection he commanded all through term as Commissioner must been one of the durable satiations of his life.

disasters and anxieties of last two years have made, as now, cruel inroads upon already depleted physical force. He met them all face forward, in the sure happiness his home and in his hopes and dreams for the son who carries his name. Those of Bowdoin all know his devotion to his son. He never missed a Commencement. His son was entered in the class of 1940, as soon as the boy could he went to Commencement marched in the procession on graduation Day. He has been in Bowdoin traditions.

one of the classmates of whom he most loved should to join with a former pastor church in the funeral service beautifully fitting. Those knew his regard for Prof. Mitchell that no other could speak so unerringly the words should be said.

they did so many others. He was a college classmate of mine and a fraternity brother. We roomed near each other in the same dormitory for four years; ate our meals three times a day at the same table; recited in the same recitation rooms; many, many times studied our lessons together; played tennis and other games with each other; played jokes upon each other; and talked together about many of the serious problems of life. He was so strong-bodied, and good-natured, and large-hearted, that, like others in our group, I came to think of him as a kind of big brother. He, I knew, was my friend and I was his. And it is with a sense of pride and gratitude that I can say here to-day with the strictest truth that never in all that time did I know him to do a disloyal, untrue, or unmanly thing. And this, I am sure, would be the testimony of those who knew him in college, whether casually or intimately.

We have at Bowdoin College the custom of choosing at the end of Junior Year the man best liked by his class. On Ivy Day, at the public exercises, his name is announced and he is presented a gift as a symbol and token of that admiration and affection. It was in no perfunctory spirit that Henry Hastings was thus chosen by his classmates. They respected him for his scholarship, his intellectual ability; they admired him as an athlete, strong and skillful; but more than all else they loved him as a friend and comrade.

And often, as I have thought of it since, he seemed to live a clean, honest and joyous life without conscious effort. There are people in the world, we know, who are often talking about their own righteousness; always reminding us of their earnest desires to do right but of the difficulties they encounter in so doing; as if their nature would lead them to do mean things but by supreme effort they succeeded in conquering those inherent tendencies that were constantly trying to drag them down. I would not for a moment seem to deny to any such all possible praise for all they thus succeed in doing. For ought I know they live heroic lives. I do, however, want to say that somehow or other Henry Hastings seemed to me to do the manly thing because it was inherent in his very nature to do it. I cannot remember that we ever talked together about the value of an honest character, the importance of doing the square thing. That, it seemed, he took for granted. It hadn't occurred to him to think or do otherwise. Such were the principals of living that he had seen practiced in his home; that had been taught him from infancy; and to do anything else would be contrary to his whole unconscious philosophy of life.

I have spoken thus of Henry Hastings as a student because it was then that I knew him most intimately and closely. But I do know that those same sturdy elements of character that then dominated his life, time and experience with the world have, throughout the years, been unable to weaken. I do know that there was in him always the same scorn of things that were mean and underhanded and there was in him the same large-heartedness and desire to help his fellow-men,—the same kindness of spirit. The last letter I had from him was in praise of a boy in this town who he hoped would be able to come to college. The last time I ever saw Judge Hastings alive was just after we had said good bye and he was walking over towards the College Office to interview the Dean in behalf of that same boy.

You will perhaps recall that the poet, William Wordsworth, in one of his great poems speaks of "those little nameless, unremembered acts of kindness and of love," which are, he says, "the best portion of a good man's life." And is not this true? More and more, I think—especially as we grow older—do we come to the conclusion that kindness, real kindness, is the best portion of even a good man's life, and that there is nothing in all the world so royal as this fine quality which ever bespeaks a large heart.

And so today as we think of the life of him whose death we mourn, this thought comes in upon us all. I am sure. What a precious thing in the world is kindness! How it gives meaning and value to this human life upon earth which otherwise might seem at times cruel and purposeless! How it can increase our powers of imagination and help us to see others' troubles! How it can indeed stand unconquered and unafraid in the presence of death!

Many of you here very likely know that when he was in college, Henry Hastings was known by the nickname Bob. It came to be to us who were closest to him a term of real affection. I speak of this in order to make plain the last words of the notice of his death which as secretary of the class, I sent last Friday to its members. The words are these: "Bob was always so vigorous and vital, so abounding in health, the proudest in his strength, the manliest of us all," that I find it difficult to think of him as gone. It is superfluous for me to add, but I cannot help it, that he was a lovable fellow, homespun, rugged, brave and kind, his character like the rock-ribbed hills by which all his life he was surrounded. For you, and for me, and for many another, the world has been richer because Bob lived."

I do not know how it is with you, my friends. But I never like to think that the other world—the great world of the spirit—is far away, and that those whom I have known and loved have passed into a world that is afar off. I like to think that the spirit world is very near to us; and that only a veil separates us from the spirits of those who have gone before. This thought is to me a comfort and a consolation. And as today we think of this strong man who had this desire to better the world, to stand for the right, and to make the lives of others easier, can we not think he is still to be in this community and this home, that his brave spirit is still near to his friends, and that the very best of all ways to mourn his loss and to keep alive his memory is to do those things which he would have his friends do—to be true to the best that he desired and to be loyal to the things which he loved?

And as we seek to do this, let us not easily forget that here was a man whose faith in the fine, strong, brave things of life was unshakable.

"One who never turned his back but marched breast forward, Never doubted clouds would break, Never dreamed, though right were worsted, wrong would triumph, Held we fall to rise, are baffled to fight better, Sleep to wake."

The words of Scripture that come unbidden to the lips as one thinks of the life and character of Henry Hastings are these: "Quilt you like men, be strong."

BETHEL AND VICINITY

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hall with George Hall and Mrs. Frank Cummings of Lewiston were at Josey's Mills, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bennett of Arlington, Mass., are spending a two weeks' vacation with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howell Crosby and Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Bennett.

Miss Isobel MacTangler, who coached "Henry's Wedding," was a recent over night guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Kimball, en route to Bar Harbor where she is to coach a play.

Mrs. Anna French, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Smith and daughter Marcia attended the funeral of Dr. Twitchell at Auburn and also went to cemetery at Yarmouth Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Spink and two children of Watertown, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Adney Gurney and little daughter spent the past week at "Snuggle Inn" cottage, Twitchell Pond. The party enjoyed a trip through the mountains Friday.

Mrs. Grace Stearns, who has been vacationing with relatives and friends for the past two months in East Sable River, Shelburne County, and Liverpool, Queens County, Nova Scotia, returned to Bethel Saturday morning and will resume work in the home of William Blingham 2d.

minded of the affection and respect of many friends all over the state. Their married life which had covered 64 years the 26th of last January had been unusually happy to the end. Their hospitality was noted, and Dr. Twitchell always was delighted to impart to others who were struggling with farm problems the benefits of his experience. He was a ready talker and his addresses at grange and other public affairs were both informative and entertaining. He had received the gold star of a 50-year grange member.

Apart from his connection with the grange and the Universalist church, Dr. Twitchell was not affiliated with any organizations. But he was public spirited, read and thought much on public questions and was an intelligent type of citizen and patriot. His influence was widely felt in Maine, through his personal contacts and through his writings in the press. He was a contributor to the daily newspapers on current issues and never hesitated at taking a strong stand on moral questions.

Dr. and Mrs. Twitchell went to Auburn to live in 1906 and spent their winters there. Funeral services were conducted at the home, 17 Maple Street, Auburn, Saturday afternoon, Aug. 18, and were simple in character in accordance with his last wishes. Although it was requested that flowers be omitted, there were in evidence many of the garden blooms which he loved.

The services were conducted by the Rev. Weston Cate, pastor of the Elm Street Universalist church, Auburn. Interment was in the family lot at Yarmouth and the bearers were George Merrill, Carl Sherman, Sherman Bonney and Everett Gilman, all of Auburn.

Among those in attendance at the funeral were his sister, Mrs. S. Irving French; a niece, Mrs. D. R. Smith, and family of Bethel; a nephew, George H. French, and Mrs. French of Turner.

The following tribute was printed in the Portland Sunday Telegram and Sunday Press Herald:

In the death of Dr. George M. Twitchell at his home in Auburn Wednesday night the readers of the Press Herald residing on farms lost a real friend and counselor. In addition to those he will be missed by thousands of other folk who profit by weekly contributions to the newspaper, for being a deep student of affairs in general he often touched upon matters of interest to rural and urban dweller alike.

His temperament was a happy admixture of conservatism and progressiveness. He championed the best of the older traditions—those things which have stood the test of time and lost naught of their worth to mankind—and he accepted and staunchly defended the best of the new thoughts affecting our economic and social life.

The experiments which he conducted at his little farm home, Inglenook, in the Town of Monmouth have proven of untold value to the farming population of this State, and he gave freely of his time that his fellow men might benefit. Inglenook was a heaven on earth to him, and we can imagine this brave and true soul and tireless worker in the interests of others asking nothing more in the new vista that has been opened to him than a spot like his vine-covered cottage and acres.

Mr. Frank P. Ritchie of Woodford is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Cole.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Abbott and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bennett spent a few days at Bailey Island last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Judkins of Farmington were at their home here Monday.

Mrs. Dora Bassell and Mrs. Sherman Ordway were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ordway the first of the week.

The annual Universalist Grove meeting will be held in Dearborn Grove next Sunday, Aug. 26.

MRS. TENA KIMBALL WINSLOW

Mrs. Tena Kimball Winslow died very suddenly from heart failure in her auto at Portsmouth, N. H., Friday, when returning home from work. She was the daughter of the late Oscar and Annie Bacon Kimball and was born in Paris. She is survived by a daughter, granddaughter, three sisters, two brothers, and several aunts, uncles and cousins. The funeral was held in Portsmouth Saturday and the remains brought Sunday to Wayside Cemetery, West Paris, where a burial service was held, Rev. Harold L. Merrill of Roxbury, Mass., officiating.

WEST PARIS

Funeral services for Helge Alexander Mostonen of Richardson Hollow, Greenwood, were held at the Finnish Congregational Church, Thursday afternoon, Rev. Arne Arvalainen, pastor of the church, officiating. Burial took place at the Finnish cemetery. There were pretty flowers. West Paris high school sent a very beautiful floral offering, the deceased being a member of the Senior class. He was the son of Jaek and Katie Niskanen Mustonen and was born at West Paris Oct. 1, 1915.

Miss Ethel Brock spoke at the Federated Church Sunday, and her sister, Mrs. Clarence Whitney, and daughter of Skowhegan sang solos.

Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Chase and Miss Louisa Swan of Locke Mills motored to Farmington Sunday to visit the zoo.

Perkins Valley — Woodstock

Roland Parsons, wife, and son, Donald, of Portland were callers at Nelson Perham's Wednesday, Aug. 8, to see their father, Will Johnson.

Maud Benson was in Norway shopping Tuesday.

Frank Cushman and son, Arthur, and an elderly lady from Somerville, Mass., who are spending the summer at Bryant Pond were callers on Jennie Libby Tuesday.

Friday evening callers at Nelson Perham's were Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Verrill, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Verrill and Robert Pierce of West Paris. Sunday callers at Nelson Perham's were Charles and George Verrill of Greenwood and Winslow and Alberta Thurlow of Pigeon Hill.

Flora Swinton worked for Maud Benson Friday.

Claribel Randolph worked for Evelyn Appleby some this week.

Thelma Silver has been hired to carry the scholars from this and the Dunham neighborhood this school year.

Everell Wilson is building a double garage for A. R. Hendrickson and son.

Mary Hendrickson and part of her school has gone camping at Littlefield's camping grounds this week. Mrs. Alvah Hendrickson accompanied her. Alvah will also stay there part of the time.

Everell Wilson got thrown from a horse Tuesday morning and injured quite badly. He was riding the horse to work when the horse reared throwing him to the ground. He got tangled in the harness and the horse trod on his feet nearly severing one toe and otherwise cutting his foot. Mr. Wilson was taken to Dr. Kay's office and it was found necessary to remove part of the bone from the toe as it has been crushed.

The descendants of the late Melon and Nancy Benson will hold their first reunion next Sunday on the Bernal Thurlow farm, otherwise known as the old Perkins homestead.

Several from this neighborhood are working on the new State road which is under construction beginning at the tar road by the Union church and coming toward the Valley.

SOUTH WOODSTOCK

Sunday, Aug. 19 — Clear and cloudless with an ideal temperature. A perfect summer's day.

Saturday nearly everyone went to West Paris to attend the fair, one of those pleasant gatherings that the whole family for weeks have been planning to enjoy. The day was one of the best, and such a good crowd as they did have. We didn't have half time enough to see it all, everything was so nice and interesting. We had to come home early to look after the farm chores, but we sure did enjoy the West Paris fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Omer Brown of Bryant Pond spent the week end with their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Davis, at Davis homestead.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Perham were callers on his cousin, Mrs. Eliza A. Davis, this Sunday morning. Albert Felt was also a caller there.

Alvah Hendrickson had the lumber landed this week at his place, all in readiness for the erection of a large garage.

Gayden G. Davis and family attended an auction sale in Oxford, August 18. After making several bids and becoming the owner of a few antiques, his attention was called to the activities of a flying machine, the landing field being nearby. Mr. Davis enjoyed passage and took a flight which proved so enjoyable that he decided to at once fly again, which he did, accompanied by his little daughter, Edith Marolla, aged five years. Like her daddy she much enjoyed the flight, begging to go again.

Aunt Martha Bryant Cash, formerly a resident of South Woodstock but now of Enfield, Mass., where she lives with her granddaughter, formerly Miss Marion Fields, now Mrs. Richardson, is spending some time here. She is visiting with relatives, friends and old time neighbors.

Stanley Andrews will soon go to Boston, where he will take a special course in an embalming school. George Davis and son, Guyson G., was in Augusta, Aug. 19, where they spent the greater part of the day in sightseeing at the State House.

The Braves of Molly Ockett are nearly all fully recovered from the battle with the blood-thirsty Reds of Redding. Sometime, not now, "Me try him again," Chief Big Gun sits stoically. No reply. But the Braves are getting restless. The corn is ripening. Soon they will dance the corn dance. Soon the tom-tom will beat. Again they will engage in battle. Brave Roberts will cheer. Again will echo the war whoops of victory.

The improved road has been staked out under the supervision of Bill Lynn. Commencing at Davis Corner, opposite the Curtis Hill road, winding through "Andrewsville", it will proceed by Guided Hill, opposite Hendrickson's, to Perkins Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Orin Mason of Bryant Pond were Sunday visitors with the family of Ralph Dean.

The many friends of Mrs. Sweetser, "Aunt Ella," were saddened to learn that late Sunday afternoon, while on a visit at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Russ, of this place, she had fallen and broken her wrist. At this writing we learn that the arm was broken in two places, the wrist and the bone above the elbow. Mrs. Russ will care for her mother assisted by Mrs. Flossie Perham, R. N., their neighbor, who lives near by.

AFTER breakfast Hays led his men, except Latimer, up through the west outlet, from which they climbed to the highest point in the vicinity. Every point of the green hole was in plain sight. Every approach to it, even that down the dark gully, lay exposed.

Brad Lincoln said sarcastically: "So you been savin' this roost for your old age?"

Then Jim put in his quiet opinion: "A band of men could hang out here for twenty years—unless they fought among themselves."

"Eh!" Slocum let out a single sharp exclamation.

They left Jim on the bluff to keep the first watch.

"Robbed Herrick!" exclaimed Slocum incredulously. "Was there a fight?"

"Yes. But Hank might have avoided it. He drove the man crazy.

Fellers, Hays'd steal coppers off a dead man's eyes—shore. But what he said he wanted was the girl fer ransom. Yet he picked a fight with Herrick an' beat him with a gun."

"Keep Quiet an' Shell Out Your Money," Hank Ordered."

"An' shell out your money," Hank ordered. That didn't faze the Englishman. He jumped up, thunderin' mad. Hank hit him over the head, cuttin' a gash. That didn't knock Herrick out, but it made him fight till Hank got him good an' hard. Then he opened his desk an' threw out some packages of greenbacks. After that he slid to the floor. Next Hank ordered me to go out an' round to the girl's winder. It was bright moonlight, but I didn't locate the winder quick. An' at that I was guided to it by the girl's voice.

"Gimme another drink."

"Wal, Sparrow wanted us to have it, not, I reckon, because we took care of him when you forgot, but jest because he cottoned to us."

"Smoky, tell Hays the other reason," spoke up Jim.

"Thet'll wait, Jim. No hurry.

"Wal, where was I? . . . When I straddled that winder still I seen the girl sittin' up in bed, white as the sheets about her. Hank had a gun pointed at her head, an' he was sayin' if she yelled, he'd shoot. Then he told me to look around ter money an' jewels. I started that, keepin' an eye on them. The room was as moonlight as outdoors. Hank told her to git up an' dress for ridin'.

She refused, an' he yanked her clean out of bed. "Gurl," he said, "you're hawg-tied down in the living room, an' if you don't do as I tell you, I'll kill him. . . . I'm taking you away fer ransom, an' when he pays up you can come with the Wells-Fargo paper on it.

Then I stuffed in my pockets, an' I "Mind" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, August 26. Among the citations from the Bible is the following: "All nations whom thou hast made shall come and worship before thee, O Lord; and shall glorify thy name. For thou art great, and doest wondrous things: thou art God alone" (Ps. 88: 9, 10).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, one of which reads: "All that really exists is the divine Mind and its Idea, and in this Mind the entire being is found harmonious and eternal. The straight and narrow way is to see and acknowledge this fact, yield to this power, and follow the leadings of truth" (p. 151).

Fels Co. of Portland has been awarded a $22,000 contract to construct a heating and ventilating system at the State Hospital in Augusta.

Fire destroyed the farm buildings of Daniel Pilpo at East Hebron, about 1:30 Tuesday morning. The flames spread rapidly and the family had barely time to escape. The loss is estimated to be over $7,000.

The Public Utilities Commission has permitted the Canadian National Railway to close their station at Danville Junction and use the Maine Central Railroad's.

More than 10,000 persons attended Maine's second Summer Visitors' Day at Augusta Friday, sponsored by Governor Brann.

A firebug is suspected in a series of fires causing $150,000 damage at Skowhegan.

Thieves entered the jewelry store of H. W. Hanson, Rumford, Thursday night and took rings and watches values from $400 to $500. Entrance was gained through a rear window.

A half ton turtle was caught off the Isle Au Haut, at Rockland, Thursday. The reptile was of a diamond backed variety, usually found in southern waters. It measured seven feet from the tip of its nose to its tail.

Emergency Relief Administration reported 160 women working in 16 canning centers the first of the week.

Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes arrived in Lubec Monday to survey the Passamaquoddy Bay region. This is the proposed site for a $49,000,000 tidal hydro-electric power generating project.

Dr. William R. Chapman of Bethel will be honored at the Eastern Music Camp, on the shore of Lake Messalonskee, by the "Chapman Day" observance which will take place at 3 o'clock daylight saving time, Sunday, Aug. 26.

HINES TAKES FONTAINE

Last night's initial show of the scheduled weekly mixed cards of boxing and wrestling was witnessed by a small but enthusiastic audience at the Grange Hall.

In the wrestling Tiger Hines of Lewiston got two consecutive falls over Ray Fontaine, the bald-headed tattooed man from Conway. The first in 21 minutes with a flying butt, the second in 4:30 with the same hold.

It was a fast bout, marked by occasional "bad man" stuff on the part of Fontaine.

The main bout of the boxing was between Ginger Beck of Lewiston and Eddie Robertson, classy colored boy from South Boston. The latter had a decisive edge over Beck and won every round by a wide margin. In the prelims, Kid Slaughter, southpaw slugger of Brunswick, edged Lonnie Dayton of Lewiston in a fast four round bout.

Farmer Hubbard of Casco and four fast rounds to a draw in the Kayo Williams of Portland went opening fight. The boys weren't good but they sure were willing.

SIMPLE FLOWER CONTAINERS THE

Fortunate for the depression book some of the most creative and most suitable vases for arranging our garden flowers inexpensive and can be found on the pantry shelf, says Mrs. Cobb, home management agent for the Extension Service.

"One of the rules of flower arrangement," she says, "is that the receptacle should not be conspicuous or call attention to itself. Would ever notice a brown pot for itself alone? But use a container for calendars, or other bright colored flower vases. It has no equal. Deep rich brown suggests the earth from which the flowers grew. Soft earth colors, browns, putty colors, dull gray greens, and sometimes are the best colors for flower vases. Many of these can be among our kitchen equipment.
